

they are by far the more ancient of the two. It is only reasonable to suppose that they will be more resistant to new influences. In the one case
time may act by centuries : in the other it may be ineffective unless measured by thousands of years.